Miss Teague also took a motor trip to Belgium, following the old battle front as far as Ostende, passing through Complegne, St. Quentin, Cambrai, Ypres and Dixmude; a visit to the exposition in Brussells was greatly enjoyed. It was encouraging to note that the cities in the war zone have been rebuilt and much of the land in this beautiful part of France is again under cultivation. However, Miss Teague found condio the depression and political unrest here were few American tourists in Paris, in comparison with former days, probably because of the difference in the rate of exchange. opening of a New York play, starring the Lunts. Ruth wore the shell-pink velvet dress beneath the fox-trimmed evening coat and wondered if she were overly dressed or rushing the season. It appeared that she was not.

John was satisfyingly impressed. "You're stunning!" he told her, looking across the table in frank appraisal. "Did you send for all these clothes you've been wearing lately? You came without baggage. If I remember rightly. All for the funniest reason! Last spring my—my family sent a box for Saint Stephens' rummage sale and it got here too late. Penny for Saint Stephens' rummage sale and it got here too late. Penny all and it's been there ever since. We opened it after I came and a was stocked with fall and winterlicities from here too late. Penny alranged it up to the store room and it's been there ever since. We opened it after I came and a was stocked with fall and winterlicities from last season."

John said, "A girl who's crazy enough to come of without her clothes from last season."

John said, "A girl who's crazy and a good orchestra. There's the finding you next door, for instance. Liking you.—"

"No." answered Ruth humbly, "she doesn't. I haven't deserved any of the breaks of this visit, John. Finding you next door, for instance. Liking you.—"

"Just—liking me. Elaine."

"Just—liking me. Elaine."

"He replied, making patterns on the table cloth with one figure. The childs and form the table cloth with one figure. The childs are party that he asked her. He shall find the country Club tonight. Or we could go to Cleveland. It doesn't matter to me where we swallowed bravely and said in a swall weather to me where we small, clear volce, "And my name to we could go to Cleveland. It doesn't matter to me where we small, clear volce, "And my name to me where we look the ticket offered him, said a forgiving goodby to the law's victorious representative and put him, and a good orchestra. Two big fireplaces. Maryland borrowed it, and she must leave it as bright and shining as she had fried chicken—"
Ruth said, "Are you a paid press agent for this paradise, or just feeling lyrical? Anyway, I'm sold. What time shall I be cowardly in her to have spoken to away, maybe I'll leave a letter."

"We'd better allow an hour and a half," he calculated. "on account of the curves. I'll phone for 7 o'clock reservations. Let's leave here about 5:30. Do you you're planning a dismissal for me. When is this to happen? Any definite time set?"

"No definite time," she answered, not looking at him.

Her face must have registered tome of the turmoil of her thoughts, for John said quickly.

"We'd better allow an hour and a half," he calculated. "on account of the curves. I'll phone for 7 o'clock reservations. Let's leave here about 5:30. Do you think Bertha will object?"

Ruth shook her head and laughed a bit hysterically. "Just protecting my good name. Wasn't it crafty of me?"

"Yes," he answered. "Ruth woodson. Sort of cute, honey."

"It's my favorite alias," she said. Then, "I can't do the new dance steps. Do you mind?"

"Angel!" he replied. "You're saying that because you know I places where anything goes. I won't dress. Won't have time.
